

JH Individual Report

Since the previous hand-in I have worked on the latest version of the mesh network protocol in super-group meetings. As well as continuing to feed back to the group about this I took the task of integrating the supergroup mesh protocol with our group's code alongside Oli, and testing it with other groups. In addition to this I worked with Nicola to plan out and begin to draft the final report, and created the task sheet and feedback form for the user testing. In the final week we all worked on sections of the report, and spent the last few days collating, proof-reading and adding videos.

All the members of the group worked well together, especially considering challenging personal circumstances for Nicola and Joanna towards the last few weeks of the report. Oli worked incredibly hard towards the end of the deadline, and although all members of the group pulled their weight, he deserves particular recognition.
